Dr. H. Curtis Biggs

Orthopedic Surgeon

The latest in knee replacement surgery

After completing an orthopedic surgery residency and then fellowship in joint replacement at the world renowned Cleveland Clinic Foundation, Dr. Biggs entered into private practice in Massillon, Ohio. His joint replacement practice quickly grew to well over 400 joint replacements per year. During his time in Ohio, Dr. Biggs served as a national instructor for orthopedic surgeons, teaching and developing their surgical skills utilizing minimally invasive joint replacement. His practice also served as a site for multi-center investigational studies for developing new implants and procedures.

He continues to serve as a national instructor for knee and hip replacement including hip resurfacing surgery. He serves as an advisor for developing new technologies in joint replacements as well as collecting information on patient satisfaction and surgical outcomes.

Since moving here from Ohio, Dr. Biggs and his four children have enjoyed becoming active members in the community and look forward to living in the Naples area for many years to come. The Biggs family enjoys many outdoor activities ranging from golf to motocross.

He will speak today about the latest developments in knee replacement surgery.

Historic Moments: The Paul Harris Room

The Paul Harris Room at One Rotary Center in Evanston, Illinois, USA. March 2010.

On 19 April, Rotarians celebrate the birthday of Rotary's founder, Paul P. Harris.

And though we can't say for certain whether the gifts on display in the Paul Harris Room were birthday presents, they do offer a glimpse into his life.

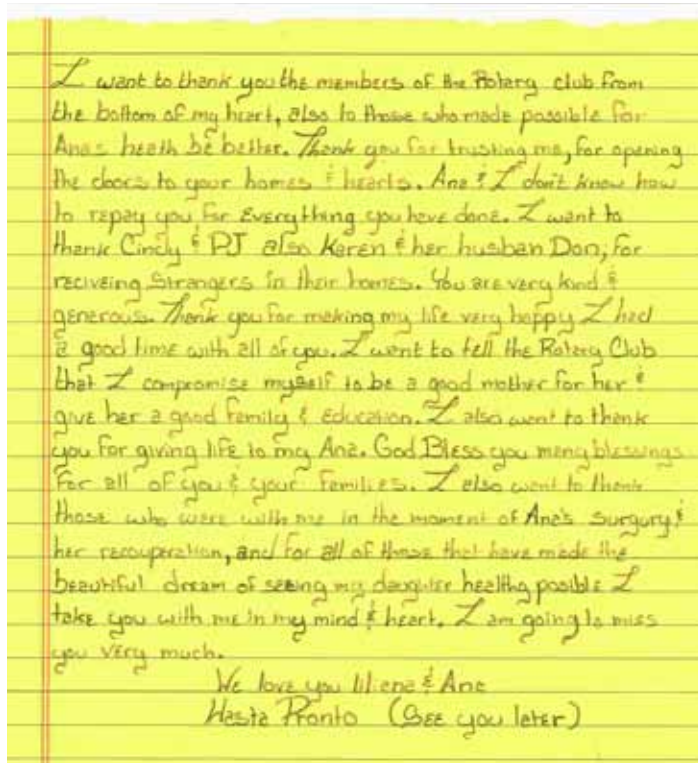

Harris's desk is the centerpiece of the room, located on the 16th floor of RI World Headquarters in Evanston, Illinois, USA. A 1935 gift from Australian Rotarians, it's made from a variety of woods with an inlaid Rotary emblem in the corner.

A polished wood desk set from the Rotary Club of North Sydney, New South Wales, Australia, and a small bison statue from the Rotary Club of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, are among the many other artifacts on display.

As president emeritus, a title he held until his death on 27 January 1947, Harris had an office at Rotary's former headquarters in Chicago. There he kept many souvenirs from his travels around the world, along with gifts and awards, and photographs of his fellow Rotarians and Rotary activities. After his death, Harris's wife, Jean, donated the contents of his office to Rotary, which now displays many of them in the Paul Harris Room.

The room offers Rotarians an intimate glimpse into the life of Rotary's charismatic founder. Visitors are welcome to view the room and a reproduction of Room 711, the meeting place of the first four Rotarians, at RI World Headquarters.
